ESU will Offer a Series of Short Lectures and Roundtable Discussions this Month and in August at its Lehigh Valley Center, 60 West Broad Street in Historic Bethlehem. The Summer Roundtable and Lecture Series is offered at no cost and is open to the general public. Each event will feature short, topical presentations delivered by members of ESU's faculty, followed by audience discussion. The first roundtable, featuring Bradford Seid, Ed.D., professor of recreation services management and Haklin Kimm, Ph.D., professor of computer science, will take place on July 24 at 6:30 p.m. at the Lehigh Valley Center. Dr. Seid will lead group discussion on the basics of quality guest and customer service, focusing on the changing landscape of customer expectations and the qualities that define exceptional business owners and managers in service industries. Dr. Kimm will present his research on Coastline Satellite Image Analysis and lead a discussion on how to apply computer science problem-solving techniques to real world problems. For more information please contact Tom O'Connor, ESU's Lehigh Valley site coordinator, at 610-419-0412 or by email at toconnor4@esu.edu.
